The Protestant Magistrates and Clergy of the Principality of Sultzbach, have wrote a Letter to the Protestant Body at the Dyet of Ratisbon, wherein they set forth, 'That notwithstanding their many repeated Complaints of Grievances in the Article of Religion, they could never obtain Redress, tho' the Prejudice they suffer thereby extends not only to Ecclesiastical, but to Civil Affairs: That if Things are to remain in this melancholy Situation, 'tis to be fear'd the Protestant Religion will soon be quite abolished in the County of Sultzbach; and therefore they desire the Protestant Body to apply once more for a Remedy.' The said Body has, on this Occasion, wrote a Letter to the Emperor, wherein they intreat his Imperial Majesty to cause due Justice to be done to the said Protestants, according to the Constitutions of the Empire, the Treaty of Westphalia, and the Religious Conventions sign'd at Nuremberg.

Letters from Venice mention the Death of a Native of that Country, who lived to be 121 Years old, after he had been above 60 Years in Slavery to the Turks, by whom he was formerly taken Prisoner; but his Master, in Consideration of his great Age, made a Present of him 14 Years ago to the Signior Emo, then the Venetian Minister at Constantinople, who, when his Embassy was expir'd, took him along with him to Venice, and kept him as long as he liv'd, in his House. This Man always enjoy'd perfect Health, and work'd till the Week before he died, when he was first obliged to take to his Chamber, and then to his Bed.
